

Regarding the FCC hearing on Feb 20th, regarding an open meeting to decide whether to relax current rules that require incumbent local exchange carriers (ILECs), e.g., phone companies like Verizon, to share their network facilities with competitors. I strongly believe that if such deregulation of monopolies must be considered, the State should be given the power to evaluate the effects on its own market and make its decision accordingly to ensure competition.